

CONTRIBUTORS

ACSÁDY, JUDIT is a Senior Researcher at the Institute for Sociology at the Centre for Social Sciences, Hungarian Academy of Sciences. She holds a PhD in Sociology (ELTE University, Budapest), with the dissertation titled Emancipation and Identity (2005). Her main research fields include gender studies, social history, feminism and social movements, and state-socialism and transition. She has participated in several international research projects (EIGE, GENDERWISE). She is member of an international research network 'Aftermath of War', which is organized by Ingrid Sharp and Matthew Stibbe. She is founding member of the Feminist Network, Budapest (1990). She is also member of the Editorial Board of the Interdisciplinary eJournal of Gender Studies. Her son, Áron, is twenty-one years old. E-mail: Acsady.Judit@tk.mta.hu.

ASZTALOS MORELL, ILDIKÓ is an Associate Professor in Sociology at Mälardalen University, Sweden. She has published over 60 studies, the majority of which focus on gender aspects of state socialism and post-socialism. Her monography, Emancipation's Dead-End Roads (1999) explores the emergence of the Hungarian model for agriculture from a gender perspective. She co-edited with Yulia Gradszkova Gendering Post-socialism (2018). This volume contains studies on the articulation of post-socialist transition and gender. She has several studies on the ethnic aspects of poverty as well as migration. E-mail: ildiko.asztafos.morell@mdh.se.

BARÁT, ERZSÉBET is an Associate Professor in the Department of English, University of Szeged and Recurring Visiting Professor at CEU since 2000. She holds a PhD in Linguistics, from Lancaster University, UK. She is director of the 'Gender through literatures and cultures in English' Track in the English Studies MA. She is founding Editor-in-Chief of the Hungarian journal, TNTeF: Interdisciplinary Electronic Journal of Gender Studies. She launched and has organized the annual gender studies conference in Szeged since 2005. Her research interests include feminist critical theory, relational models of identity, the relationship between language, power and ideology, the intersection of feminist and queer theories, and lavender linguistics. She is a regular contributor to edited volumes and journals in English and Hungarian. E-mail: zsazsa@lit.u-szeged.hu.

DOWNES, LYNSAY is a Priest in the Scottish Episcopal Church and Rector of St. Ternan's Banchory, in the diocese of Aberdeen and Orkney. Her interest in narrative identity formation began whilst studying for her BA in European Studies at the University of Hull and JATE, Szeged. Whilst completing a BTh at Ripon College Cuddesdon, part of Oxford University, she also developed a passion for theopoetics. Her current daily work is complemented with a focus amongst the Neurodiverse Community. E-mail: revdlynsay@zoho.com.

Kérchy, Anna is an Associate Professor at the English Department of the University of Szeged, Hungary. Her research interests include the post-semiotics of the embodied subject (especially disability studies, freak shows, the female grotesque, corporeal narratology), gender/body studies, women's writing and art, interfacing of Victorian and postmodern fantastic imagination, fairy tales, children's/YA literature, and transmedia storytelling. Besides numerous refereed essays published in international journals and collections, she has authored three monographs: Alice in Transmedia Wonderland (2016), Body-Texts in the Novels of Angela Carter (2008) and A nő nyelvet ölt: Feminista narratológiai, esztétikai, testelméleti tanulmányok (2018) and (co)edited 5 essay collections and 3 journal special issues on the above themes, including an EJES special journal issue on feminist interventions into intermedial studies. E-mail: akerchy@gmail.com.

KOCSOR, FERENC is a Research Fellow in the Institute of Psychology at the University of Pécs (PTE). He obtained his degrees in Biology and Economics from PTE, and defended his doctoral thesis in 2015 at the Doctoral School of Basic Medicine. His main research interests are evolutionary psychology and the intersection of cognitive and social psychology; specifically social perception, face perception, and the cognitive background of stereotype formation. E-mail: kocsor.ferenc@pte.hu.

KOZMA, LUCA is a Research Assistant in the Institute of Psychology at the University of Pécs. Concurrently, she is a PhD candidate at the Evolutionary and Cognitive Psychology Doctoral School. She obtained her degree in Psychology from the University of Pécs in 2015. Her research interests incorporate evolutionary psychology and social psychology, with special focus on social perception, face perception, and the interplay of gender roles and mate choice. Email: kozma.luca@pte.hu.

KÖVÉR-VAN TIL, ÁGNES is a Lawyer and Sociologist, and an Associate Professor and Director of the Gender Studies MA Program at School of Social Science, ELTE, Budapest, Hungary, where she teaches employment policy law, women and labor market policy, diversity and deviance, and gender discourse analysis. She has a distinguished career as a nonprofit organization executive and human rights lawyer in Hungary. She is the author or editor of several books and numerous articles on such topics as gender discourses, equal treatment and opportunities and minority rights, prisoner's rights, and the theory and practice of social welfare. She has served as Program Associate Director of the European Union's Intensive (international) Program, and before that was Executive Director of the ELTE Legal Clinic program. Email: kovera@tatk.elte.hu.

MÉSZÁROS, ZSOLT lives and works in Budapest at the Petőfi Literary Museum. He graduated from ELTE University, Budapest, in 2006 as an art historian and defended his PhD in 2017 in Comparative Literature. His research interests include history of feminism, women's writing, fashion magazines, fashion, and gender. He is currently adapting his dissertation for a book (Wohl Sisters: Literature, Fashion Magazines, Literary Salon 1860-1900). E-mail: meszso@gmail.com.

SZARVAS, RÉKA is a first year PhD student in the Doctoral School of Literature and Culture at the University of Szeged. Her research interests include gender studies, contemporary women's writing, feminist metafiction, and corporeal narratology. Her PhD work is a continuation of her MA Thesis entitled Mad Housewives and Cool Girls: Gillian Flynn's Novels as Feminist Metafiction (2018). E-mail: szarvasrekaanna@gmail.com.

SZLAMA, GABRIELLA ZSÓFIA earned her MA degrees in History and Cultural History from Eötvös Loránd University. Currently, she is a PhD student at the Social Communication Doctoral School, Corvinus University, Budapest. Her main fields of interest are the history of Hungarian fashion in the 19th and 20th centuries; her PhD research is concerned with the relationship between emancipation and women wearing trousers at the turn of the century. E-mail: zsofi.szlama@gmail.com.

TÓTH, ESZTER ZSÓFIA is a Historian and Senior Research Fellow at Veritas, Research Institute for History, Budapest. She earned her PhD in 2004 in Economic and Social History at ELTE, Budapest. Her research interests cover Hungarian social history after the Second World War, more specifically gender and oral history, history of consumption, history of sexuality, and drug consumption. She has published eleven books and about 200 articles, some of which are in English and German. E-mail: fermina33@gmail.com.

TÓTH, ZSÓFIA ANNA is a Senior Assistant Professor at the Institute of English and American Studies, University of Szeged. She received her PhD in British and American Literature and Culture from the University of Szeged in 2011. Her main research interest is concerned with the representation of female aggression and violence in American literature and culture, and most specifically film. Her other fields of interest include Jane Austen (her works, their adaptations as well as her legacy, her ‘afterlife’), the New Woman (her representation and historical, cultural, and academic reception) as well as Disney and Pixar animations. Her current research project explores the relationship between humor and gender, women’s humor in the work(s) of Mae West. E-mail: tothzsofianna@gmail.com.

ZSADÁNYI, EDIT is an Associate Professor at the Cultural Studies Department of Eötvös Loránd University of Budapest. She was Senior Lecturer at the Finno-Ugric Department of the University of Groningen from 2009 till 2014. Her fields of research are women writers in the 20th century, modern and postmodern Hungarian and American literature, with particular emphasis on Cultural Theory, Narrative Theories, and Gender Studies. She is the author of five books, one published in English and four in Hungarian: Basil, Reseda and Touch-me-not Plant: Cultural Otherness in Feminist Critical Perspective; Gendered Narrative Subjectivity: Some Hungarian and American Women Writers (2015); A másik nő: A női szubjektivitás narratív alakzatai [The Other Woman: The Narrative Figures of Female Subjectivity] (2006); A csend retorikája: Kibagyásalakzatok vizsgálata huszadik századi regényekben [The Rhetorics of Silence: The Figures of Omission in Modernist Prose Fiction] (2001); Krasznahorkai László, [László Krasznahorkai] (1999). She also co-edited the collections of essays: Gender Perspectives on Hungarian and Finnish Culture. Maastricht, 2011. E-mail: ezsadayi@gmail.com.